

Wow, that's great, Ahsto. It is gratifying to see someone else using my work! I like it!

I have switched from  $\bar{\square} \bar{\square}$  to  $\bar{\square} \bar{\square}$  for "word" + "words".

For one thing, a small square is my position indicator, (on, in, top)
 I got  $\bar{\square}$  from Japanese  $\bar{\square}$ ,  $\bar{\square}$  (in) to say, where  $\square$  is "mouth".

I have come to like  $\circ$  or  $\odot$  for "both" better than  $\ominus$ .

Notes: I don't have an id for "Wow".

$\bar{\square}$  great (big  $\checkmark$  on a pedestal  $\square$ )

$\bar{\square}$  gratifying  $\bar{\square}$  thank  $\bar{\square}$  bowing for something  $\bar{\square}$  make (city)

$\bar{\square}$  some one ~ bird, also "tree" ... any  $\bar{\square}$  some

~ like, I like it. (~ the opposite  $\bar{\square}$ ) I like such short forms.

In Japanese they don't say "I" all of the time, + "it" isn't necessary either.

$\bar{\square}$  indicator  $\Rightarrow$  finger  $\Rightarrow$  point (Latin index)

The superscript "x" high on the right I use for "er" or "or"

$\bar{\square}$  it is a thing,  $\bar{\square}$  if a person:  $\bar{\square}$  eater,  $\bar{\square}$  sleeper

$\bar{\square}$  better.  $\bar{\square}$  good + more ( $\bar{\square}$  best) I used to use  $\bar{\square}$  for "better"

$\bar{\square}$  than I am proud of this id - it works for me.

it give a sense of jumping over ( $\bar{\square}$  compare)

$\bar{\square}$  as I am proud of this id too. I think of the = (equal) sign sliding up + down. I am not as tall as him.

$\bar{\square}$  + ,  $\bar{\square}$   $\bar{\square}$   $\bar{\square}$ .

As x becomes larger, y become smaller

$\bar{\square}$  x  $\bar{\square}$   $\bar{\square}$  + , y  $\bar{\square}$   $\bar{\square}$  + . ( $\bar{\square}$ )
