

Rory Peat quote

The culture of adaptation creates a life trajectory, in which what they want is contrary to what life needs. Remembering yourself as the one whose future is always in question, in doubt + open, you know where youthful energy lives, + I think it starts to feel as though gravity is pulling for you, making things roll toward you - that is, things indicate where they need to go, so it isn't necessary to plan, to keep perceiving possibilities as they open up better generalities.

NOTES: culture & person a group of people (group x thing) → way. The ways of a group of people. | ..F*o*i contrary F against (F*o* S*u*e)
 .F anti (Latin dot) .. Latin 2nd (.contra) : adjective indicator remember think lose gain (I use remember as a simplification over ids that specifically show the storage + retrieval aspects) question black box = unknown open start begin/end sudden gravity heavy force (grav) toward → to direction (=ward) necessary must : adjective, need → must o shows emptiness - a hole plan time (future on right) : list keep have keep continue perceive see per = through possibilities x thing possible : in a series of items the last element is open - not filled in ○ ○ family

I thought early on that I should make these ideograms unambiguous for the sake of clarity. That didn't come to pass. I use a number of id elements for multiple purposes, and in my mind, at least, it doesn't cause any confusion.

○ is a good - perhaps the best - example. By itself it could be a ball or circle, its context makes the intention clear.

(also ○ ball + ○ circle [L is 2d indicator, ○ would be sphere])

I use ○ as a general bounded area, defining a space or a group

→ thru or other or different

⊕ commit (⊕ mit send) ⊕ penetrate ⊕ space (⊕ room)

⊗ group (X thing & person) ⊙ set ○ family (○A) ⊖ herd (⊖ gregarious)

○ same ○ similar

⊕ culture (the ways → of a group of people)

I use it for "seconds": for synonyms I often use the same id but circle the less common one Y big Y large ! little ! small Y Y clap Y Y applaud, etc.

But the use of ○ I mean to focus on here is as a generalized object.

⊕ automatic
⊕ happen
⊕ self
(That which happens by itself.)

⊕ respond ⊕ react (⊕ do ⊕ act) ⊕ some ⊕ part ⊕ shitty (a thing with shit on it) ⊕ conscious ⊕ attract, especially the group in which there is a sense of attachment

⊕ function
(to work = .func)

○ property (⊕ self ⊕ own)

⊕ characteristic [Greek charak-etch]

○ quality ○ feature

○ function ○ aspect (.spect look) ○ regard

○ whole
