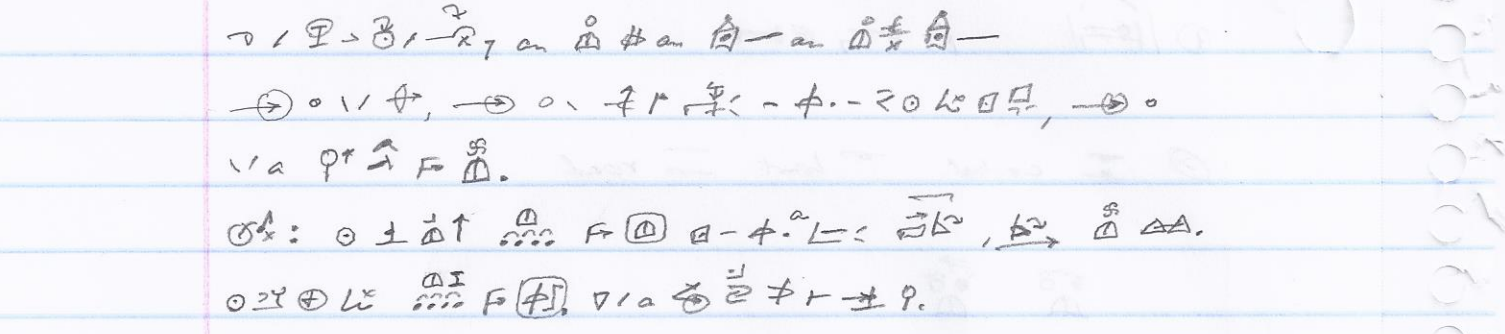
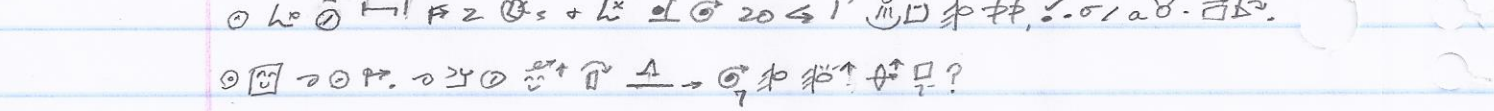
1/18/19



What is important to me is capturing an idea with an image — an ideographic image — such that it is clear, such that it makes very definite the sense of the word I have in mind, such that it is a better tool for thought.

Example: I just thought up for "think" in the sense of a linear progression, step-wise thought process. I could also have for "sense". This is a rather complicated id but still good.



I have been up for 2 hrs. and have already created 20 or so delightful new ids, each of which is a particle of progress. I enjoy what I do. What could be funner than constantly creating new fresher, clearer mind?

NOTES: image picture such "in a way" (way) (such: that kind) tool hammer general (= class of abstraction above) thought think move (pinwheel) = activity (thought) complex simple "up" in sense of no longer lying in bed. already time yet now still past future could can if mind a screen in the forehead () (face) area.

: .

Another complicated id for "think": bringing from subconscious to conscious.